WISCONSIN EMPOWERED

2016 ANNUAL REPORT
Dear Supporters, Advocates, Allies and Friends,

At End Domestic Abuse Wisconsin, 2016 has been a year of impact, of significance, of growth and of recognition.

Financially, we are stronger than ever before. That financial strength has enabled us to be more impactful than ever before, supporting more programs and survivors. Our success is directly due to your support and leadership on our behalf. Thank you.

In this 2016 Annual Report, we are highlighting WE LEAD, which is the “Wisconsin Empowered! Leadership Enrichment and Development” program created by End Domestic Abuse Wisconsin. It is a year-long leadership academy that focuses on building new voices of leadership within the movement to end gender-based violence. WE LEAD provides hands-on leadership development opportunities for survivors of violence and/or people from Wisconsin’s marginalized communities.

WE LEAD has its roots in two longstanding committees at End Abuse, Communities of People of Color and the Battered/Formerly Battered Women’s Committee. In 2010, the committees were joined together and transformed to create a program entitled the Connected Cultures Leadership and Skill Building Institute. In 2012, the participants helped us change the program into WE LEAD.

WE LEAD Leadership Academy training topics include: Foundations of Leadership, Strategies to End Gender-Based Violence, the Impact of Oppression, Power and Privilege on Leadership and so much more. I hope you enjoy reading more about this wonderful program in this report.
“Grateful and proud to have had the opportunity to get to know advocates across the state doing important work in their communities to end gender-based violence. It was intense at times, eye-opening, powerful, deeply challenging and equally as rewarding. We grew as leaders, together.”

-Sheba McCants, WE LEAD participant

Let's End Gender-Based Violence

WE LEAD, a program of End Domestic Abuse Wisconsin, builds new leadership within the movement to end gender-based violence by providing hands on leadership development opportunities for survivors of violence and/or people from Wisconsin’s underserved or underrepresented communities, which includes individuals who identify as: people with disabilities, having limited English proficiency, people of color, Deaf and hard-of-hearing, LGBTQ, refugee/immigrant, as well as the intersections of these identities.

WE LEAD participants attend two-day trainings six times annually in Madison. During these trainings, participants:

~ Learn about key leadership concepts and theories and practices of the prevention and intervention of gender-based violence, including its root causes of oppression, power and privilege;

~ Build and enhance skill and capacity as leaders and agents of change;

~ Become part of a network of socially conscious advocates and ally leaders committed to ending gender-based violence through new and innovative ways;

~ Connect with fellow advocates throughout the state.

“The program works to build upon the knowledge people already have within themselves,” says Danny Ho of End Abuse. Ho leads the program sessions with his colleagues Diane Wolff and CJ Doxtater and says that each of the facilitators brings a unique perspective to the work. Wolff has deep knowledge of infusing trauma-informed approaches into the culture and capacity of victim service organizations. Doxtater draws upon his decades of experience working in Native communities, with survivors who have disabilities and with elder populations to bring a richness to every WE LEAD conversation. Ho contributes his extensive experience bringing an intersectional analysis to gender-based violence prevention.
The WE LEAD program is gaining in popularity, with nearly twice as many applicants as accepted participants each year. Through generous financial support, we are able to offer these trainings free to participants. Sessions are located in the Madison area during the months of May, July, September, November, January and March.

The WE LEAD Leadership Academy Selection Committee looks for individuals who:

- Are over 18 years old;

- Are seeking to enhance their leadership skills;

- Identify as a survivor of gender-based violence and/or as being from a marginalized or underrepresented community in Wisconsin;

- Are committed to learning new and innovative ways to end domestic and sexual violence;

- Are committed to full participation and attendance in all WE LEAD Leadership Academy training sessions and activities.

How to Apply:

Applicants have been selected for the current season. Application information for the 2017-2018 program will be announced in January 2017.
